

Research and Evaluation Department FAQs

1) Q: Where can I find graduation rates for Arizona schools?

A: All available graduation rate data are located here:
<http://www.ade.az.gov/researchpolicy/grad/>.

2) Q: Where is dropout rate data located?

A: Dropout rate data for Arizona schools is available here:
<http://www.ade.az.gov/researchpolicy/DropoutInfo/>.

3) Q: Where can I view the most recent AZ LEARNS and AYP information?

A: The most recent AZ LEARNS achievement profiles can be found here:
<http://www.ade.az.gov/azlearns/azlearns.asp>.

The most recent AYP determinations are located on this page:
<http://www.ade.az.gov/azlearns/aypdeterminations.asp>.

4) Q: Where are the public AIMS results?

A: You can find AIMS results here:
<http://www.ade.az.gov/researchpolicy/AIMSResults>.

5) Q: Where can I find my child's AIMS results on the ADE website?

A: The Arizona Department of Education may not give out individual student assessment results. Please contact the school or district where your child tested for test results.

6) Q: Does the criterion for "highly qualified" apply to private schools?

A: The criterion for "highly qualified" applies to all public district and charter schools. However, private school teachers serving Title I students in a Title I program must meet the highly qualified requirements.

7) Q: Where can I find the number of student enrolled in Arizona schools?

A: October 1st Enrollment is available here:
<http://www.ade.az.gov/researchpolicy/AZEnroll/>.